Increase selectivity to separate the strong from the weak.

- Focus on the strong trends and avoid the laggards.
- The financial markets are not all moving together in lock-step uptrends.
- In general, the broad market for common stocks remains bullish for the long-term.
- Net New Highs rose to 288 this month, the highest level in 52-weeks.
- The Cumulative Daily Advance-Decline rose to a new all-time high this month.
- The Dow Theory again confirmed the major bull market trend this month, when both the Industrial Average and the Transportation Average rose to new all-time, closing-price highs.
- The bull market trend was confirmed further this month by new highs in all of the major US indexes, including the S&P 500 (both weighted and unweighted), the NASDAQ, small caps, and mid caps.
- The following industry sector ETFs confirmed new highs this month: XLI, XLB, XLE, XLY, XLV, and XLF.
- Of the S&P 500 stocks, 66.6% remain above their trailing 50-day Simple Moving Averages, and 67.2% remain above their trailing 200-day Simple Moving Averages. Both remain near the upper ends of their 52-week ranges.
- 33 of our 38 major market ETFs are in objectively strong positions, with the 50-day Simple Moving Average (SMA) above the 200-day SMA.
- Investor sentiment remains moderate for stocks.

International Equities (except for China) rose to higher highs this month, again confirming bullish momentum. Emerging Markets (EEM) and EAFE Developed Markets (EFA) prices both rose to new highs and remain bullish. China stocks ETF (FXI) has been struggling since its peak at 42 on 10/2/2025 and continues to underperform global markets. Avoid FXI.

The US Dollar ETF (UUP, 26.85) fell to 4-year lows this month and is likely to signal a “Death Cross” next week—which is recognized when the 50-day SMA crosses below the 200-day SMA.

Metals record-breaking crash demands immediate defensive action. On Friday, Silver (SLV) plunged 28.5%, Gold (GLD) fell 10.3%, Gold Miners (GDX) lost 12.76%, and Copper (CPER) declined 5.89%. Past history shows that such severe crashes following previous big price runups are most often followed by further very large price declines. Long-term trend followers still have large gains, and now prudence requires immediate protective action to protect those gains. Further weakness below Friday's lows would confirm the beginning of new downtrends. Note that our ranking system depends on moving averages and therefore can lag too far behind current price action when prices suddenly crash following parabolic price rises.

Proceed cautiously with US bond ETFs demonstrating persistent, lagging short-term price momentum: TLT, TIP, IEF, and AGG.

Continue to avoid underperforming ETFs in objectively bearish trends (with the 50-day SMA below the 200-day SMA): Bitcoin (IBIT), Agriculture (DBA), Crude Oil (USO), Real Estate (XLRE), and Consumer Staples (XLP).

Ranking Methodology: Our rankings use the most important Simple Moving Averages (SMA) to objectively quantify Relative Strength, which we sort from strongest to weakest. Academic studies and extensive experience show that probabilities favor buying the strongest trading instruments and avoiding weaker, underperforming ones. Although no market strategy is foolproof, buying and holding the strongest instruments has produced above-average returns in most years and is one of the most effective methods for selecting specific regions, countries, sectors, industries, stocks, bonds, or tangible assets for investment.

A strategy emphasizing both capital preservation and return on investment appears most rational and prudent at this time.

Every day we measure and weigh objective technical and quantitative data in order to judge the Reward/Risk probabilities of trend continuation or reversal. Our goal is to protect your assets from major risks while capitalizing on an improving investment outlook for the medium- and long-term. We always put our clients' best interests first.

The table above shows our quantitative Relative Strength Rankings, ranked from Strongest=99 to Weakest=1, in multiple time frames. The 50/200 column is the most important, indicating the percentage difference of the 50 SMA divided by the 200 SMA, an indication of the dominant trend. Next in importance is the C/200, indicating the percentage difference of the latest price Close divided by the 200 SMA, an indication of the medium-term trend. The C/50 indicates the percentage difference of the latest price Close divided by the 50 SMA, reflecting a somewhat shorter and more sensitive medium-term trend. Finally, the C/20 indicates the percentage difference of the latest price Close divided by the 20 SMA, an indication of the short-term trend. SMA is an abbreviation for Simple Moving Average. Bullish trends are displayed in green, while Bearish trends are displayed in red.

Sectors Ranked above 50 (as shown in the Rank column, the first one to the left) are demonstrating above-average major-trend Relative Strength, according to our completely objective quantitative algorithm. Those are the sectors most likely to outperform going forward. Sectors Ranked below 50 are demonstrating below-average Relative Strength and are most likely to underperform going forward.

The data in columns offer perspectives on sector strength measured in multiple time frames. They quantify each sector's absolute Price strength relative to the most widely-accepted simple moving averages (SMAs), expressed as a percentage of a shorter time period Price divided by a longer time period's average Price.

Investors seeking to maximize returns should concentrate in the higher-ranked, strongest sectors while avoiding the lower-ranked, underperforming sectors. Relative Strength has worked very well for many decades, outperforming nearly every other method of stock selection.

Top 10 ETFs, objectively ranked in order of long-term Relative Strength:

To arrive at our Top 10 ETFs selections, we first measure trend momentum of each ETF over a long time frame, 50-and 200-trading days. Next, we rank 143 of the most important ETFs, from highest to lowest. Finally, we select the ten highest-ranked, best-performing ETFs, the ones with the strongest major-trend Price momentum.

Research studies suggest that ETFs ranked in the top decile (90 to 100) may have a greater probability of outperforming the market in the months ahead, while low ranked ETFs (0 to 10) may have a greater probability of underperforming.

For details on Relative Strength Ranking, please see Robert W. Colby's book, The Encyclopedia of Technical Market Indicators, Second Edition (2003), pages 604-609, or see our White Paper, "Introduction to the Screening Method for Analysis of Relative Strength", by Robert W. Colby, CMT, outlining some of the research behind our Relative Strength Ranking Method.

Please note that this is a high-volatility strategy: the stocks that go up the most when the stock market is in a Bullish trend often go down the most during market corrections to the downside. In addition, please note that this Top 10 list is a research study and is not investment advice. 143 Select Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs), objectively ranked in order of long-term Relative Strength:

This list is filtered to exclude leveraged and inactive ETFs trading less than 90,000 shares a day on average. Ranks are based on our updated version of the Screening Method for Analysis of Relative Strength, described above, which measures trend momentum over a long time frame, 50-and 200-trading days. For details on Relative Strength Ranking, please see Robert W. Colby's book, The Encyclopedia of Technical Market Indicators, Second Edition (2003), pages 604-609, or see our White Paper, "Introduction to the Screening Method for Analysis of Relative Strength", by Robert W. Colby, CMT, outlining some of the research behind our Relative Strength Ranking Method. Research studies suggest that ETFs ranked in the top decile (highest tenth) of the list may have a greater probability of outperforming the market in the months ahead, while low ranked ETFs have a greater probability of underperforming.

Defining Multiple Time Frames for Classifying Trends: It is important to understand that markets often display very different and conflicting trends, depending on the specific time period analyzed. Nearly a century ago, the Dow Theory established a useful way to organize time/trend information. In harmony with the Dow Theory, we organize our analysis into 4 different time frames, as follows:

1. Intraday fluctuations and day-to-day price jiggles are too small, too random, and change too frequently to be useful to anyone except elite professional traders or algorithms.
2. Short-term trends typically last about 2--4 weeks, and prices typically move only a few points. These trends change frequently, often in reaction to the latest news and rumors, and so they are fickle and unreliable. The Dow Theory views these minor ripples as insignificant noise. Although skillful traders may be able to profit from short-term price movements, most investors cannot. The S&P 500 has crossed its 20-day Simple Moving Average (SMA) every 25 calendar days on average over the past 50 years, roughly matching this short-term trend.
3. Medium-term trends typically last about 1--4 months and can produce price moves of 5%--15%. These intermediate or secondary trends can move in the same direction as the major trend or can be consolidations or corrections against (opposite to) the direction of the major trend. The 50-day and 200-day SMAs can help to identify these trends. The S&P 500 index has crossed its 50-day SMA every 6 weeks on average over the past 50 years, and the index has crossed its 200-day SMA every 3--4 months on average over the past 50 years.
4. Major long-term trends produce very big price moves that can last for years. Prices can move 20%--50%, or more. The major long-term trend is also known as the primary, dominant, and main trend. Major long-term trends are highly significant for all traders and investors. We always trade in the direction of the major trend, buying long in bull markets and selling long or selling short in bear markets, because that puts the probability of making money in our favor. Trading opposite to the major trend (that is, buying long in a bear market or selling short in a bull market) would put the odds against us and can lead to disastrous losses. All traders and investors can profit by trading in the same direction as the most important major trend. For the S&P 500, the 50-day SMA crossed the 200-day SMA every 23 months on average over the past 50 years, roughly matching this trend.

Relative Strength: academic studies and extensive experience show that probabilities favor buying the strongest trading instruments and avoiding weaker, underperforming ones. Although no market strategy is foolproof, buying and holding the strongest instruments has produced above-average returns in most years and is one of the most effective methods for selecting specific regions, countries, sectors, industries, stocks, bonds, or tangible assets for investment.

Investor Sentiment is mainly useful for short-term, counter-trend trading. Markets are complex adaptive systems that reflect the emotions of the crowd reacting to contradictory and incomplete information as well as changing decision rules. Prices tend to swing to emotional extremes of optimism and pessimism. When there is a great majority of bulls, few investors are left to buy, and rallies can suddenly fizzle and reverse. Conversely, when there is a majority of bears, few investors are left to sell, and short-squeeze rallies suddenly can appear seemingly out of nowhere. Moderate sentiment tends to coincide with uncertain, indecisive markets. Note that sentiment extremes are often early, and momentum can sustain a trend in motion beyond sentiment extremes. The Art of Contrary Opinion is not a science; it is an art lacking consistent rules.

Robert W. Colby Asset Management, Inc. (Colby) hereby certifies that the views expressed in this research report accurately reflect the personal views of the Company's Chief Investment Officer, Robert W. Colby, CMT, and/or other trained members of Colby, about any and all of the subject markets or securities, and further certifies that no part of the compensation of Colby was, is, or will be directly or indirectly related to the recommendations or views in this report. Colby is engaged in investment management as well as the conduct and publication of professional-quality, independent technical analysis research and, as a matter of policy, always makes best efforts to be as objective and unbiased as possible.

Any and all statements referring to Robert W. Colby Asset Management, Inc., performance are intended to be accurate and complete and to disclose all material facts necessary to avoid any unwarranted inference. Any and all investment performance data shown reflect all accounts in our recommended investment program. (Some clients, at their own choosing, may hold securities that are not included in our recommended investment program, or they may choose to deviate from our program in some other way; therefore, their performance results may deviate from our recommended investment program, for better or worse, and are not included in our performance data.) Our performance data reflects the deduction of advisory fees, brokerage or other commissions and fees, and any other expenses that accounts have actually paid. Our performance data reflects the reinvestment of dividends, interest, and other earnings. Our investment strategies and all fees are explained on our website and in our disclosure documents and also are available on request.

The industry standard benchmark for performance comparison is generally the S&P 500 Index, although that and all other Price indexes have certain limitations in that they differ from our recommended investment program in volatility, asset mix, diversification/concentration, dividends, interest, trading costs, fees, and other factors. Unlike the S&P 500 Index, which passively reflects the Price performance of 500 large-capitalization stocks, our recommended investment program is concentrated in relatively few securities, and actively aims first for capital preservation and second for capital appreciation. We work continuously to achieve these goals. We try to anticipate and adapt to change. Regulators point out that there can never be any guarantees in investing; there is always risk and the possibility of loss; changing market conditions are beyond anyone's control; and past performance is not a guide to future performance.

Colby's technical analysis is prepared using widely-available public data that is generally accepted as reasonably reliable, although Colby cannot guarantee accuracy or completeness of data and analysis and no representation is made to that effect. Colby's technical analysis is based primarily on analysis of the current Price and volume performance of a security relative to other securities and in the context of its historical patterns of performance, in accordance with the Body of Knowledge and Code of Ethics endorsed by the CMT Association, the globally-recognized, professional regulatory organization for technical analysts established in 1973.
